

Teaching Evaluation in Engineering Fundamentals Classes

Teaching evaluation in Engineering Fundamentals is multi-dimensional over (a) student evaluations, (b) leadership for development of either new content or new instructional methods in a given course OR curriculum wide leadership for development of either new content or new instructional methods, (d) leadership in assessment of courses, (d) participation in Jackson Center for Teaching and Learning events AND/OR ASEE or FIE conferences or similar, and (e) faculty self-reflection on yearly goals in teaching and resultant yearly outcomes and/or peer evaluations of faculty teaching.