This spring break 20 students will travel from Michigan Technological University in Houghton, Michigan, to the world hub of start-ups and entrepreneurs—Silicon Valley.

Visits with entrepreneurs, inventors, managers and companies including Google, Tesla, Netflix and incubators like Plug&Play will provide you with a first-hand understanding of technology built enterprises that are revolutionizing global business.

Go to Silicon Valley
March 5-11, 2017

Rub elbows with entrepreneurs, leaders, and CEOs from top companies.

Taking applications for 10 seats for the Spring Break 2017 Silicon Valley Experience. Another ten seats were won as prizes at the 2016 Bob Mark Elevator Pitch Competition on October 6th. There are only 60 interview slots available on a first come first serve basis. Selected students must provide a $400 co-payment by December 20th to keep their seats.

This trip is open to all Michigan Tech students. Student participation is based on a two minute interview on “Why you want to work and live in Silicon Valley.” If you are interested in participating, please email Karen Foltz at ksfoltz@mtu.edu. You will be assigned an interview time starting at 3:00pm on Friday, November 4, 2016.

"As an MBA student, this valuable eye-opening experience not only enabled me to immerse with real perspective and experience on entrepreneurship and technology management from Silicon Valley players, but also gave me an opportunity to put my best foot forward."

Feng Xu, MBA Student
