The Copper Country Reading Council in collaboration with MTU's English Education program invited young Western UP writers and artists to express what they appreciate about Lake Superior through creative writing and visual art following a visit from Ann Arbor children's author and musician, Kitty Donohoe. Donohoe visited classrooms during the week of October 16th, working directly with students in classrooms. By December 1, the kids had submitted their work to be judged and exhibited. A panel of judges made up of teachers and professors selected the winning submissions. All pieces are now on exhibit at Houghton's Portage Lake District Library (PLDL), and can be seen here through mid-February during regular library hours.

North Woods Kids is supported by a MCACA mini-grant.
