CAPSTONE CORNER

Nineteen Capstone Design projects were completed successfully this past April and another nine are at their halfway point, having started in January. A good number of dedicated students are working on these projects over the summer. One very interesting entrepreneurial project is continuing this summer with business students from Aquinas College growing a market and building a business case for a biodegradable clay pigeon designed by a Capstone Design team this past year; exciting collaboration with some innovative ideas coming from these groups!

Michigan Tech's Capstone Design Program is looking for more industry sponsored projects for the Fall 2010 semester. If you can support this world-class engineering design program, and would like a part of this Capstone Experience, please contact me:
