

SS2200 Introduction to Archaeology

Online - Summer Track A - 3 credits

How does the past shape our modern reality? This course explores the tangible evidence of our history through archaeology. After exploring the diverse methods used to discover and interpret past cultures, we will shift our focus to the practical application of these findings. We will examine archaeology not just as a study of the past, but as a vital tool for solving contemporary problems, ultimately discovering why the human past remains essential to navigating our present lives.

Fulfills: Essential Ed. Foundations in the Human World, LG8, Gen Ed Resp. Ethical CORE

Questions?

Contact: Sam Sweitz

srsweitz@mtu.edu

Michigan Tech
Social Sciences

Michigan Technological University is an Equal Opportunity Educational Institution/Equal Opportunity Employer that provides equal opportunity for all, including protected veterans and individuals with disabilities.